

KEARNS MEN TELL WHY THEY QUIT

Say They Wanted to Get Proof of Church Opposition.

TALE OF THE PRIMARIES

PREPARATIONS UNDER WAY FOR FALL CAMPAIGN.

"We laid down on these primaries for the purpose of smoking out the Smoot bunch. We led them to believe we would make a fight and then failed to show up for a contest. Our plan was merely to ascertain their position; to ascertain definitely whether the church was back of the opposition to Kearns; to learn how strong the church intended to go into this fight, and to get an alignment of forces for the fall campaign. The death of Hanna will make the convention merely a ratification meeting, anyway, with nothing tangible to gain."

This is the explanation given by the Kearns cohorts of the failure of the Kearns people to jump into the ring at the recent Republican primaries. It comes from one who is competent to speak for the followers of the senior senator. The explanation sounds all right so far as it goes, but there is good reason to believe he did not tell all the story.

As this man tells it the story begins early in the year. The Smoot faction proposed to send Smoot and Howell to the national convention and leave Kearns at home. A canvass of the situation led them to believe that they might not succeed in this endeavor and they then decided it would be better to have Smoot and Howell, who is easy to convince, withdraw from the field and let Kearns remain the only member of the congressional delegation in the field for election to the convention. This would give them a chance to accuse Kearns of trying to grab all the glory in sight and, they reasoned, a sentiment could be created along this line that would feed Kearns against it good and hard and send him down to ignominious defeat in the state convention, with consequent loss of prestige.

Proposition for Harmony.

The Kearns formation, however, got next to this plan and the Smoot crowd took another tack. A Kearns representative was asked to confer with one of Smoot's friends who came forward with a harmony proposition. The Smoot man represented that the fight in the state, and especially in Salt Lake county, was likely to be all-fired close this fall and it was no good for all factions should get together. The term "harmony" as understood by the Smoot crowd means the elimination of Kearns. Transpose the words "Smoot" and "Kearns" and you get the Kearns side of it. With this clearly understood neither the Smoot representative nor the Kearns man was at sea regarding the plans of the other, although each played the other for a man of much less perception than he really was.

The "harmony" talk was held. It lasted for some time and the outcome of it was a deal that contemplated the withdrawal of Kearns, Smoot and Howell from the ring. Then a proposition was made to pick out six Republicans of prominence that were not tied to either Smoot or Kearns. As the party in Utah does not contain six men of this description, no agreement was reached. Neither side could name a man that the other would accept, and the proposition was off. The Smoot side stuck out for Sutherland, Loos and Anderson for its three. The Kearns party construed these three names to constitute Reed Smoot of Provo, and sarcastically suggested Kearns, Heywood and Heath for the other three, and Miss Harmony politely withdrew from the scene again.

Plan of Kearns Men. Then the Kearns formation got together and mapped out a plan of campaign, which embraced considerable publication in the Kearns newspaper. First came a spiel or two about harmony. Next came a letter of withdrawal from Kearns and the announcement that Smoot and Howell had also concluded to withdraw. Next, more "harmony" and a statement that no "factionists" were to be tolerated among others who should not go the names of Kearns and his closest followers, also Sutherland, Anderson and Loos.

The final journalistic shot came the morning of the primaries in the form of a strong peace talk and the announcement that the Kearns people would keep their hands off. This was all right so far as it went, but another part of the paper a flank of the Kearns forces was laid open. The opening was furnished by some comment on "bolters," an unmistakable reference to the late city campaign. This made more trouble. There were Republican bolters last fall—plenty of them—many, in fact, that it angered them to stir them up and rub salt into their cuts.

Furthermore, it gave the church organ, which is not at all opposed to Smoot, an excellent chance to take a few pot shots at Kearns and his stalwarts, and this was what they delivered that evening. They did not in any way bring comfort to the Kearns side of it.

Smoot Alone in Primaries.

The primaries were held, and, following their scheme, the Kearns people kept their hands off, and Sutherland, on the face of the return, can go to the convention and take any friends he desires. A few Kearns men, either unaware of the plan or in disobedience of instructions, suffered themselves to be elected delegates to a notable instance being the case of Councilman A. J. Davis, who was one of the several millionaires around the Kearns neck in the city campaign.

Now, say the Kearns men, they have won their point. Just what point has been achieved is, nevertheless, not clear to the casual spectator. "It was no victory," say the Kearns men, "because we made no fight. They have won nothing. They don't know where we are at."

Sutherland is popularly supposed to have his eye fixed on the latch of the Senate chamber, which he expects Smoot to lift for him just as Smoot lifted it for himself. Certainly, he is no enemy of Smoot and no friend of Kearns. Damon and Pythias are not closer pals than Smoot, Anderson and Loos. Sutherland has not heaved any bricks against the Anderson or Loos residence lately, if ever. While Sutherland maintains that his desire to go to the convention is largely based on personal and social reasons, and while he insists he is not identified with any faction, his enmity to Kearns is sufficient to identify him with the Smoot faction. The fact that the Kearns people announced Sutherland should not go was an additional reason for his making a strong and, as it has proved, a winning fight.

The Kearns people claim to have established what they wanted to know, that the church is back of the opposition. They cite the list of delegates proposed and the personnel of those attending the primaries in support of this. It was not, however, necessary to go to all this trouble to find out that the church liked Smoot pretty well.

What They Wanted to Know. This leaves the matter of Kearns' gain still lost in the brush somewhere. His lieutenants are confident he took the best course in withdrawing. There is every reason to believe it was written that he was to be mangled in that state convention. He would have liked to go, naturally. The Utah congressional delegation is probably the only Republican delegation in the country that will be represented in the national convention. Smoot can better afford to stay away than Kearns, because Smoot's prestige is based on something different from "Kearns." It is likely to be fairly busy with the Burrows committee this summer, anyway, and will be content to remain as inconspicuous as possible.

While Kearns has undoubtedly suffered a loss of prestige through the triumph of his enemies in the primaries, he is probably in better shape for the fall campaign than if he had gone into the primaries and before the state convention and been defeated. If he had pursued the latter course it would have been a far as it is he can claim that he has made a good move.

As to the campaign this fall and Kearns' chances therein, little but speculation can be indulged in at this time. It is said that he is entering the senatorial fight in the effort to succeed himself in the next few months. If he has reason to believe the deck has been stacked against him he will keep out. Speculation along this line is idle, however. Perhaps the next senator elected in Utah will not be a Republican.

ONE SET OF PRIMARIES.

Delegates to Two Conventions of Democrats to Be Same.

Delegates to the Democratic city judicial convention and to the Democratic district judicial convention, for the purpose of nominating judicial candidates to be voted for next fall, will all be chosen by one set of primaries in Salt Lake. This was determined upon yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Democratic county and city committees which was held at the office of Morris Sommer in the Eagle block. It was also decided to call the city nominating convention for the same day on which the district convention will be held.

No action was taken and no recommendation was made as to the time of calling the convention or of holding the primaries, as the city committee will await the action of the judicial district committee and conform their course to that of the district committee.

George Riser was appointed chairman of the Thirty-first district in Salt Lake, and the chairmanship of the Second precinct in the city, resulting from the resignation of T. C. Lewis, was declared to be vacant, which vacancy will be filled at the next meeting of the city committee. The committee for the judicial district is composed of A. C. Ellis, chairman; H. P. Henderson; H. J. Dinning; Waldemar Van Cott and Morris Sommer for Salt Lake county; C. A. Callis and John Paradise for Summit county, and W. J. Robinson and A. H. Dunlavy for Tooele county.

The members of the county committee who were at yesterday's meeting were Thomas Green, John Holt and Nicol Hood.

The city committee members who were present were M. E. Mulvey, chairman; C. M. Jackson, secretary; Morris Sommer, John Halverson, G. B. Blakeley, S. E. Hamer and J. N. Haslam.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

London, April 3.—Business on the stock exchange during the past week was more active, largely owing to a revival of confidence on the Paris bourse, from which large buying orders were received, as well as from Berlin, Amsterdam and Brussels, showing that the continent had resumed its courage to transact business, which had been rudely shaken by the outbreak of war between Russia and Japan. Cheap money also continued to favor small investments and the Anglo-French political approach had a good effect. The American market shared fully in the general steady improvement, activity in Union Pacific being the leading feature.

TREATY WITH RUSSIA.

United States Wants to Appear as a Favored Nation.

St. Petersburg, April 3.—Ambassador McCormick is negotiating with the foreign office for a treaty with Russia which will give to the United States corporations the right to sue in Russian courts and to Russian corporations the right to sue in courts of the United States. Under the Russian law United States corporations can be sued but cannot sue in the courts of the empire. This has caused United States firms great annoyance, as well as losses in the past. In addition the ambassador hopes to secure in the treaty a broad clause which will authentically give to United States corporations all privileges, in whatever character, now enjoyed by the corporations of any foreign country. Although there are difficulties in the way of accomplishing the desired result, the ambassador's advances have been met in the friendliest spirit, and the indications are that his negotiations will terminate successfully. The only countries now enjoying the privileges which Ambassador McCormick is striving to obtain for the United States are Germany, Greece, Bulgaria and Italy.

BOTH BANKS SAFE.

Worst Appears to Be Over at the Grand Reservoir.

Celins, O., April 3.—The wind abated today, but a force of men is still working on the east bank of the Grand reservoir, cutting trees and rapping them into the lake to break the waves. Rocks and sacks of sand are still used as ballast. The water is still going out of the waste weir. It is believed to-night that both banks are now safe unless more rain follows.

Salt Lake City Proof

Edward Brown, boiler maker, of 521 East Fifth South, says: "Any man who follows my calling requires a good, strong, sound back, and if a boiler maker has attacks of aching across the loins which force him when sitting to rise, which morning after morning makes him lame and sore across the small of the back, which costs him quite an effort to dress himself, that man is often in misery, particularly when he has to bring a strain on every muscle of his loins during the day. I doctored and took a great deal of medicine, but until I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills when living in Ogden, I met with very indifferent success. When I commenced the treatment I had very little confidence in obtaining any results, but five or six boxes, all told, stopped a very serious attack. Since coming to Salt Lake City I have procured Doan's Kidney Pills at F. J. Hill Drug Co.'s store, knowing that the remedy can be depended upon should recurrence take place."
